Art Unit: 3682

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okamoto, U.S. Patent No. 6,036,372.

Note particularly column 4, line 64 through column 5, line 4: “In another embodiment, compression means includes a smooth bore through both opposed separated planes and a fastener comprising a nut and bolt. The nut and bolt are tightened with respect to each other thereby locking the bearing assembly onto the rotatable shaft. While two compression means have been described, any equivalent means for drawing the opposed separated planes together may be used.”

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okamoto '372 as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Martinie, U.S. Patent No. 5,417,500.

Martinie disclose an annular locking collar in which the lugs for the fastener passages are defined by: 1) a groove formed in the outer periphery of the annular locking collar (Figure 4); and 2) a chordal flat formed on the outer periphery of the annular locking collar (Figure 5). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the lugs of Okamoto to include other known lug designs, including that of a groove for the desired purpose of harboring the head of the fastener such that it does not protrude from the outer surface of the collar, and a chordal flat for the desired purpose of allowing the bore for the fastener to be drilled into a flat surface, as taught and suggested by Martinie '500.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
